Alot Health> Wellness as a note, never stop taking medication without talking to a first doctor. Stopping certain medications suddenly may have serious side effects. We often assume that the drugs we are taking are good for us. Our doctor told us to take them, right? It is intelligent to follow the orders of the doctor because they know about the health better than anyone else. Unfortunately, this does not mean that the drug is good in the long run. There are many reasons why someone should, at least, ask questions to your doctor about what you are prescribed. Many physicians prescribe medications designed to be short term, and a person who leads them in the long run can cause problems. Sometimes you should ask for a different kind of medication than what initially suggested. Remember, the world of science is always changing. There are always tests being made and redone. We can see tomorrow that what we consider good for us today may not be good for us in the long run. For example, everyone used to smoke cigarettes. Now, we know that the small tobacco roll is extremely dangerous for us. Our Miconos do the best to stay on top of this research, but sometimes there are many contradictory answers; Other times, there is a lot for them to sue. Even these studies are not always precise. Pharmaceutical companies that only want to make money from you to buy your medication for all your future futures, often sponsor studies. These studies can always be trusted à € à €
